Football in Bermuda

Football, cricket and athletics are the most popular sports in Bermuda. Although the national team has not yet celebrated any real success, two players, Clyde Best (West Ham United) and Shaun Goater (Manchester City), have played in the English top flight. By securing moves to England, they also brought great honour to the Caribbean island state.

The first Goal Project

After lengthy evaluation, the Bermuda Football Association submitted plans to lay an artificial turf pitch, which gained approval from the Goal Bureau on 22 September 2004. The new pitch will supplement existing facilities, allowing the association to run its development programmes all-year round and providing a valuable training resource for national teams whenever required. Construction work is due to begin early next year and is expected to last for four months.

Second Goal project

After receiving approval for its first Goal project - an artificial turf pitch - in 2004, the Bermuda Football Association has now requested additional funding to finally make its national technical centre a reality. The Goal Bureau approved this request as the association's second project on 4 February 2008 with the objective of providing the Bermudan association with excellent facilities for development projects and training sessions.

Women's football

When, in 1995, today's FIFA President said "The future of football is feminine", it was more than mere lip service. It reflected a strong belief in the huge potential that women's football has to develop. Ever since, FIFA has given targeted support for the efforts of associations who offer women the same opportunities to develop as male players. Launched in 1998, FIFA's Financial Assistance Programme (FAP) introduced a requirement in 2004 for the associations and confederations to invest at least 4% of their FAP funding into women's football. This threshold was increased to 10% in 2005. On top of this commitment, FIFA also promotes the women's game in more general ways by directly financing women's matches and organising competitions and symposiums. Thanks to its development programmes, FIFA is also playing an active role in the training of administrators, coaches, referees and sports doctors.
