Football in Peru

Peru have won the Copa América twice and were regular features at FIFA World Cup™ finals in the 1970s and 1980s. Players such as Cubillas and Chumpitaz are still remembered fondly by the football world. Since those halcyon days however, the Peruvian national teams have struggled. Peru hope to recapture their glory days by improving the level of coaching education. The excellent facilities already in place provide impetus for new projects. The players certainly have the talent, but they will require the correct coaching in order to enjoy success as a team.

The first Goal Project

With technical centres in Piura (in Northern Peru, opened on 27 November 2002) and Tacna (the most southerly city in Peru, the first Goal project to be inaugurated in South America, on 16 October 2002) sitting proudly alongside facilities in Lima (with integrated association headquarters) and Chincha (built with money from the FIFA Financial Assistance Programme), the Peruvian FA now has bases in four different areas of the country. The Peruvian FA intends to promote and develop football across the country in an equal, sustained and long-term manner. In this way, they hope to discover and coach new, talented players with a view to helping the national team enjoy success on the world stage once again. «These new pitches will improve and promote the quality of football in our city, and, God willing, also help our beloved team, Atlético Grau, to make it to the first division,» said Father Miguel Medina Pacere, a passionate football fan and a supporter of his local team, in his welcome address.

The second Goal project

Further to the existing technical centres and the one built as part of the first project, the Goal Bureau approved the construction of four other regional centres on 22 September 2004, each one equipped with a grass pitch, dressing rooms and an office. These facilities are intended primarily for youth football (boys and girls) and are part of a long-term project devised by the Peruvian association with a view to raising football standards on a wide scale. Maintenance costs will be borne by the relevant regional association.

Women's football

When, in 1995, today's FIFA President said "The future of football is feminine", it was more than mere lip service. It reflected a strong belief in the huge potential that women's football has to develop. Ever since, FIFA has given targeted support for the efforts of associations who offer women the same opportunities to develop as male players. Launched in 1998, FIFA's Financial Assistance Programme (FAP) introduced a requirement in 2004 for the associations and confederations to invest at least 4% of their FAP funding into women's football. This threshold was increased to 10% in 2005. On top of this commitment, FIFA also promotes the women's game in more general ways by directly financing women's matches and organising competitions and symposiums. Thanks to its development programmes, FIFA is also playing an active role in the training of administrators, coaches, referees and sports doctors.
