Football in Chad

Football is the number one sport in Chad and the game is enjoyed at all levels of society. As well as the football organised by FTF, a FIFA member association, the game is also played in streets and schools, on housing estates and even in companies. In terms of international football, Chad are regular participants in the qualifying round for the African Cup of Nations, unfortunately without ever having qualified for the final tournament of the African showpiece or the FIFA World Cup™. This weakness is also reflected at club level, as Chadian clubs rarely progress to the later stages of African club competitions. This can certainly be attributed to the dearth of experienced trainers, a luxury that the association simply cannot afford. Even a one-year contract with the Cameroon coach Jean-Paul Akono, Olympic champion coach in Sydney 2000, could not improve matters.

The first Goal Project

At its meeting on 1 May 2003, the Goal Bureau approved a project for a new national youth training centre in N'Djamena. This multi-purpose facility will provide top-class preparation facilities for Chad's national youth teams and the modern centre will boast classrooms for courses, as well as accommodation facilities. It is sure to boost the long-term future of football in Chad. The project will be fully covered by Goal and funds from FIFA's Financial Assistance Programme.

The second Goal project

The second Goal project for the Chad football association (FTFA) primarily involves work to complete the technical centre and the FTFA headquarters in N'Djamena that were built in its original Goal project. The Goal Bureau approved the completion and fitting out of the entire complex on 3 December 2006. This will dramatically improve the training facilities for Chad's national teams and enable the FTFA to conduct its administrative work more professionally. While the cost of this project will be covered in full by Goal funding, the association will foot the bill for running costs itself using the money it receives through FIFA's Financial Assistance Programme.

Women's football

When, in 1995, today's FIFA President said "The future of football is feminine", it was more than mere lip service. It reflected a strong belief in the huge potential that women's football has to develop. Ever since, FIFA has given targeted support for the efforts of associations who offer women the same opportunities to develop as male players. Launched in 1998, FIFA's Financial Assistance Programme (FAP) introduced a requirement in 2004 for the associations and confederations to invest at least 4% of their FAP funding into women's football. This threshold was increased to 10% in 2005. On top of this commitment, FIFA also promotes the women's game in more general ways by directly financing women's matches and organising competitions and symposiums. Thanks to its development programmes, FIFA is also playing an active role in the training of administrators, coaches, referees and sports doctors.

Win in Africa with Africa

Under this motto, FIFA is seeking to use football pointedly as a development tool. At the same time, the governing body is aiming to focus attention on Africa in the build-up to the 2010 FIFA World Cup™ and project a positive image of a continent that is working hard for its own development.. The Win in Africa with Africa campaign was endorsed by the FIFA Congress in Marrakesh and assigned a USD 70 million budget by the Congress in Munich.

At its heart lies the initiative to provide every African nation with an international-standard artificial turf pitch. The remainder of the eight-point programme is intended to develop domestic competitions, train African sports executives, promote sports medicine and address topical issues relating to the FIFA World Cup™ in South Africa.
