Football in Mongolia

Contrary to wrestling or archery, football is not a traditional sport in Mongolia and has had a hard struggle to make its presence felt. Having joined FIFA only recently (in 1999), the Mongolian Football Federation took part in the East Asian Football Championship qualifying round in February 2003 in Hong Kong and promptly celebrated their first victory at an international competition by beating Guam 2-0. In April, the national team took part in the qualifying round of the Asian Cup in Bhutan, following up with yet another victory (5-0) over the same opponents.

The first Goal Project

The artificial turf pitch, built with the help of Goal, was inaugurated in - for Mongolia - above-average temperatures of minus 5° in Ulaan Baatar on 24 October 2002. The President of the Asian Football Confederation, Mohamed Bin Hammam, and Prime Minister Nambaryn Enkhbayar attended the ceremony to present the new ground to the Mongolian association. Mongolia had been unable to compete internationally owing to a lack of football pitches complying with international standards. Now, thanks to Goal, this unfortunate handicap has been removed. Many projects are now in the pipeline waiting to be realised. Offices were installed in four regions to coordinate football activities throughout the country. In the meantime, the turf will be used for national league matches and school competitions at every age level.

The second Goal project

On 22 September 2004, the Goal Bureau approved a second project for the Mongolian Football Federation which involved turning the artificial turf pitch constructed under the first Goal project into a mini-stadium which will house the headquarters and technical centre complete with administration offices, dressing rooms and meeting rooms. This football complex will, in future, stage domestic and international matches. Furthermore, these new facilities will enable the development of football to be more systematic and professional in Mongolia.

Third Goal project

Given the country's unique climate – Mongolia's football season lasts no longer than five months – the Mongolian Football Federation now wishes to construct a futsal hall of FIFA-approved dimensions. On 21 March 2007, the Goal Bureau therefore approved a project to construct sports facilities with dressing rooms and an indoor hall in Ulaanbaatar.

Women's football

When, in 1995, today's FIFA President said "The future of football is feminine", it was more than mere lip service. It reflected a strong belief in the huge potential that women's football has to develop. Ever since, FIFA has given targeted support for the efforts of associations who offer women the same opportunities to develop as male players. Launched in 1998, FIFA's Financial Assistance Programme (FAP) introduced a requirement in 2004 for the associations and confederations to invest at least 4% of their FAP funding into women's football. This threshold was increased to 10% in 2005. On top of this commitment, FIFA also promotes the women's game in more general ways by directly financing women's matches and organising competitions and symposiums. Thanks to its development programmes, FIFA is also playing an active role in the training of administrators, coaches, referees and sports doctors.
